Thank you, educators!

Friends,

As Teacher Appreciation Week wraps up this year, we want to say thank you to all of the teachers across the state who are rising to the challenge of supporting our students through COVID-19.

These extraordinary times have highlighted what we have always known to be true—our educators are heroes and their efforts to provide every student with a great education, no matter the circumstances, should be celebrated every week of the year.

Thank you to every teacher who is finding a way to stay connected to make sure that their students feel supported as well as engaged. Thank you to every teacher who is not only thinking about their classroom instruction but how to support families in accessing essential services. Thank you to every teacher who believes in the innate potential of every student and works tirelessly to help them succeed. Their dedication, talent, resiliency, adaptability, and compassion are an inspiration to us all.

A teacher's success in the classroom means success across our community for generations to come. Join us in sharing our gratitude by thanking a teacher who has made a difference in your life or the life of your student—you can use #teacherappreciationmonth and #sendteacherslove on social media, brought to you by our partners at Educators for Excellence.

Warmly,

Jennifer Stern
